Dear [redacted]

Thank you for your letter of 29th April. I have no doubt that you were glad to get back to base at the end of your recent and hurried tour. We particularly welcomed the further opportunity of seeing you in England. All of us who met you here valued highly the opportunity of further first-hand discussion with you. It was particularly fortunate that you arrived at a most opportune moment to make personal contact with Mr. J.T. Campbell. It has now been fixed that he will take over from Mr. Marriott as from Monday, 20th July.

Please give my cordial greetings to [redacted] I personally greatly look forward to my next visit to Washington. Commitments here make it impossible for me to suggest even a tentative plan at this stage. All I can say is that it is unlikely that I shall be able to get away from London before the end of this year at the earliest.

Yours sincerely,
